PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

INTRODUCTION

Parliamentary procedure is not intended to repress the work of an assembly. Rules are meant to provide orderly principles so that business meetings are efficient and fair. Where there are no rules or guiding principles and where every individual is allowed to act in his or her own way, confusion and preferential treatment is often the result.

Perhaps the most important principle of parliamentary procedure is that of rights: the right of the majority to ultimately rule, the right of the minority to be heard, and the right of the individual to participate in the decision-making process through discussion and a vote.

The information on the following pages is designed to be helpful in expediting the business of the General Council. The material has been adapted from several sources, is in agreement with Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised (12th edition), and has been reviewed by professional parliamentarian Sarah E. Merkle, an attorney and credentialed parliamentarian.

This section is not an exhaustive guide to parliamentary procedure. Delegates are encouraged to study Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised to gain a more thorough knowledge of the rules by which our business is conducted.

Infographics and other reference tools can also be found at www.civility.co.

DEFINITIONS

Chair	The presiding officer or the position from which that person presides. The general superintendent serves as the presiding officer and should be addressed as Mr. Chairman or Mr. Moderator.
Parliamentarian	The person designated to advise the chair on points of parliamentary procedure and also to give similar advice to the assembly when requested. The parliamentarian gives an opinion; the chair makes a ruling.
Floor	The position of persons other than the chairman and his associates. When a member "has the floor," he or she has the opportunity to exercise his or her speaking rights and should be given appropriate attention.
Meeting	A single official gathering of the body to conduct business
Session	A series of connected meetings devoted to a single agenda
Member	A person with the right to full participation
Motion	A formal proposal by a member in a meeting that the assembly take certain action. Question is a synonym for motion .
Pending	Being processed by the chair
Table	To "lay on the table" means entrusting the case to the secretary. To lay on the table permits the assembly to set an issue aside temporarily in order to consider a more urgent issue.

OBTAINING THE FLOOR

Before a member attempts to make a motion or to address meeting participants, he or she must be recognized by the chair. With our present system of speaker recognition, a member is required to go to a tablet at a microphone and indicate that they'd like to speak. Generally, members are recognized by the chair in the order in which they indicate on the various tablets. In the spirit of our fellowship, the chair may at times invite a member with particular insight relevant to the matter at hand to speak before recognizing an individual who previously sought recognition through a tablet. When recognized, the member should do the following:

- ◆ State his or her name.

- ◆ State any other identification, e.g., district, church, or city.
- ◆ Speak to the subject at hand—speaking to the chair, not preaching to the crowd.

When finished, the delegate should yield the floor by turning the switch off and returning to his or her seat.

Thus, if the subject on the floor changes, a new order will be established to recognize those members wishing to speak to the current subject.

Each member has the right to speak on every question. However, he or she cannot make a second speech on the same question as long as any member who has not spoken on the question desires the floor. It is the prerogative of the chair to recognize each speaker and to determine a balance of negative and affirmative speeches. All speeches are limited to ten minutes, unless the assembly by motion and a two-thirds vote designates a shorter or longer time.

ASSIGNING THE FLOOR

A member does not obtain the floor by rising and addressing the chair, nor by proceeding to a speaker's microphone and selecting an option on a tablet. The floor must be assigned by the chair before a member is privileged to speak.

INTERRUPTING A SPEAKER

A member who has been assigned the floor should not be interrupted after he or she has begun to speak, unless the immediate need is of such urgency to justify the interruption.

A member who has been assigned the floor should be interrupted only by one who wishes

- ◆ To make a motion to reconsider (and this only if made on the same day as the original motion, or the next succeeding day, by a member who voted on the prevailing side)
- ◆ To rise to a point of order
- ◆ To voice an objection to the consideration of a question. (This must occur before there has been any debate or before any subsidiary motion has been stated by the chair.)
- ◆ To call for the orders of the day in case they are not being followed
- ◆ To raise a question of privilege
- ◆ To make a parliamentary inquiry
- ◆ To request information that requires an immediate answer.

MAKING A MOTION

In making a motion (this includes any substitute motion or amendment), a member first obtains the floor and prefaces the statement of the proposed action by the words "I move that . . ." To make a motion, the motion must be emailed to resolutions@ag.org prior to its introduction on the floor.

SECONDING A MOTION

In general, every motion must be seconded before it is discussed or voted upon. A member wishing to second a motion simply says, "I second the motion." Recognition by the chair is not necessary in order to second a motion, and a second may be made without the member rising. Motions that come from a committee are considered already offered and seconded.

DEBATE OR DISCUSSION OF THE QUESTION

In all debate and discussion, the following principles should prevail:

1. Speakers should avoid all references to specific personalities.
2. The motives of those whose views are opposed should not be questioned.
3. Discussion should be aimed at clarifying the facts rather than at challenging the views of those on the opposite side of the question.

VOTING ON THE QUESTION

In calling for the vote, the affirmative vote is called for first. If the chair is in doubt after calling for a vote by voice, he will ask for a show of hands. If a member questions the vote, he or she has a right to call for "a division of the house," which requires a rising vote. Division of the house does not demand a counting of the votes. If a member wishes to have the votes counted, he or she must make a motion to that effect (which must be seconded and which requires a majority vote).

KINDS OF MOTIONS

Main Motions

Main motions are those which bring some main question before the group. A main motion yields to all subsidiary, privileged, and incidental motions.

Subsidiary Motions

A subsidiary motion is applied to a pending motion as a means of disposing of the pending one. All subsidiary motions take precedence over the main motion. By means of subsidiary motions, the main motion may be amended or referred to a committee or action postponed or hastened.

The subsidiary motions in order of precedence are:

1. To lay on the table
2. To call for the previous question
3. To limit or extend the time of debate
4. To postpone to a certain time
5. To commit or refer
6. To amend (can be applied to 5, 4, and 3)
7. To postpone indefinitely (cannot be amended)

To Lay on the Table

The effect of this motion is to postpone action temporarily on the question to which it applies. This motion should be used primarily to enable the groups to consider more urgent business, and should not be used as a means of suppressing a question without debate.

To Call for the Previous Question

The object of this motion is to bring to an end the debate on the question or questions included in the call, and to secure a vote on the question(s). The previous question requires a two-thirds vote. If the motion does not specify otherwise, it applies only to the immediately pending question. The call for previous question should come from a member who has turned on a light and been recognized by the chair. Shouts of "Question" from members of the audience are not appropriate.

To Limit or Extend Time of Debate

Since certain rights are being taken away from the members, adoption of these motions requires a two-thirds vote. Motions to limit or extend time of debate are not debatable but may be amended (see note above).

To Postpone to a Certain Time

The motion is similar to "Lay on the table." It differs in that it postpones action to an established time and is debatable.

To Commit or Refer

A motion to commit or refer is debatable, can be amended, and requires a majority vote.

To Amend

The motion to amend—that is, to change the words of a pending motion—requires a second and is debatable if the motion to be amended is debatable. Amendments of the first degree and the second degree are permitted. Amendments of the third degree are not. An amendment must be germane (that is, closely related) to the motion to be amended. If not, it will be ruled out of order by the chair. A substitute motion is an amendment of the first degree.

To Postpone Indefinitely

The real object of this motion is to reject the motion to which it is applied. It is debatable and opens the main question to debate. It requires a majority vote for adoption.

INCIDENTAL MOTIONS

Incidental motions arise out of the process of business (a pending question), and as a result they must be decided before a decision can be made on the question to which they are incidental.

Incidental questions that will be briefly discussed are

- ◆ To rise to a point of order
- ◆ To appeal from the decision of the chair
- ◆ To suspend the rules
- ◆ To object to the consideration of a question
- ◆ To divide a question
- ◆ To call for a division of the assembly
- ◆ To make a request growing out of pending business
 1. To make a parliamentary inquiry
 2. To request information
 3. To ask permission to withdraw a motion

To Rise to a Point of Order

While it is the duty of the chair to enforce the rules of the assembly, any member has the right to call to the attention of the chair any violation which occurs.

To Appeal from the Decision of the Chair

An appeal may be made from the decision of the chair only at the time the ruling is made. A majority vote is necessary before a decision of the chair can be reversed.

To Suspend the Rules

The rule or rules which interfere with the action which the assembly wishes to take may be suspended, provided they do not conflict with the basic parliamentary law or with the General Council Constitution and Bylaws. The Constitution and Bylaws cannot be suspended.

To Object to the Consideration of a Question

The purpose of this motion is to prevent consideration of certain questions which the assembly may feel are not worthy of consideration. It requires no second, cannot be debated, cannot be amended, and requires a two-thirds vote. It must be proposed before debate and/or before the chair has stated any subsidiary motion.

To Divide a Question

This motion can be applied only to main motions and amendments. Parts of a question that are intimately related should not be divided.

To Call for a Division of the Assembly

The purpose for calling for the division of the assembly is to secure an accurate count of the vote, especially when the vote has been taken viva voce. This motion does not provide for a count. It provides for a standing vote. A counting of the vote must be called for by a motion to that effect.

To Make a Request Growing Out of the Business of the Assembly

This can occur during a business session when a member rises to the floor in order to:

- ◆ Make a parliamentary inquiry. This privilege should not be abused and will be prevented by the chair when such requests are made for any reason other than an honest attempt to secure information that is immediately needed.
- ◆ Request information. This request has the same privileges as a request for parliamentary inquiry. The primary difference is that the member may be seeking information from another member of the assembly rather than from the chair.
- ◆ Ask permission to withdraw a motion. After a question has been stated by the chair, it is in the possession of the group and cannot be withdrawn or modified without the approval of the assembly. However, until a motion has been stated by the chair, the proposer of the motion can withdraw or modify it in any way he or she desires.

MICROPHONE QUEUEING TABLETS

Tablets are placed at each microphone for the speaker to indicate to the chair how they'd like to speak regarding the current issue. The buttons on the tablets are labeled as follows:

Speak For	Press this to Speak in Favor of the item being discussed.
Speak Against	Press this to Speak n Opposition of the item being discussed.
Point of Order	Press this if you have a Point of Order .
To Ask a Question	Press this if you've got a question related to the discussion that isn't necessarily in favor or in opposition to the item being discussed.
Call for Previous Question	Press this if you feel you feel enough discussion has happened and you'd like to Call for the Previous Question .
Present Motion or Amendment	Press this if you'd like to Present a Motion or Amendment to the item being discussed.
I No Longer Wish to Speak	Press this if you'd no longer like to speak to the item at hand or if you've changed your mind and would like to choose a different option.
